Foreword

THIS being the one hundredth anniversary of the organization of La Salle county and Ottawa's centennial as the county seat, it is natural that thoughts should turn to the past, and to recollections of those who once were a part of the community, but who now reside elsewhere.

Time makes great changes in the physical appearance of a city, but even more noticeable to a person returning after a lapse of years are the numerous new faces and the absence of many old-time friends.

On an occasion such as this, we believe it is an appropriate time to ascertain what has become of this city's former residents, so that clumps of yore may be reunited, either through the medium of correspondence or by personal contacts.

The original purpose had been to publish this directory as a part of a regular issue of the Republican-Times, but in response to many requests this special Centennial souvenir edition has been prepared.

Several months have been spent in compilation of the data contained herein, and no effort has been spared to make it complete and accurate. To the many who have rendered valuable assistance in supplying information, the Republican-Times acknowledges its sincere gratitude.

Ottawa, Past and Present

OTTAWA, which now has the distinction of being the largest city in La Salle county as well as the county seat, is located in a spot of surpassing beauty, at the junction of the Fox and Illinois rivers.

The city is operated under the commission form of government by a mayor and four commissioners, the present city council being comprised of Mayor H. J. Hilliard and Commissioners John F. Bulger, John G. Schumacher, Henry F. Miller and Walter B. Palmer.

Ottawa has a population of 15,094, according to the last federal census.

This city was early chosen by the state authorities as an eligible site for a town along the proposed line of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

While the city later spread out on both banks of the two rivers, the original town was laid out by the canal commissioners on December 5, 1830, on the south side of the Illinois river. This plat extended a short distance across the river to the south line of the present court house square.

On January 15, 1831, La Salle county was organized and Ottawa was made the county seat. There was no court house, the first court being held under trees on the river bank. The next court was held in a double log house on the south side of the river. One side of this house was used by the court and the other by Dr. David Walker and family.

In 1839 Ottawa was incorporated as a village. The records of this proceeding were burned, thus the names of the first trustees are not known. During a session of the state legislature in 1852 and 1853 a charter for the city of Ottawa was obtained and approved by the governor on February 10, 1853. On the succeeding 3d of May, the first city officers were elected, William Hickling being chosen mayor.

Among those who became leading men in Ottawa before 1840 may be mentioned:

Dr. Jesse Walker, prominent in that group of itinerant Methodist preachers and missionaries, including Beggs, St. Clair and Peter Cartwright, came to Ottawa from Virginia in 1825. He established missions and schools among the Pottawattomie Indians who, however, in spite of the earnest efforts of missionaries, both Catholic and Protestant, remained pagan.

Dr. David Walker, a practicing physician, came to Ottawa from Virginia in 1826. He and his numerous family played an important part in the settlement and early business of Ottawa. His son, Wilbur, brought the first keel-boat up the Illinois river in 1825.

George E. Walker, son of Dr. David Walker, followed his father to Ottawa in 1827. He was a captain of scouts in the Black Hawk war and an Indian trader. Indeed his trading house and the log house used jointly as a court house and residence were the only two houses in the new settlement in 1831. Mr. Walker served as the first sheriff of La Salle county.

Col. Daniel F. Hitt came to Ottawa from Ohio in 1830 as one of a corps of engineers and surveyors locating the route of the Illinois & Michigan canal. He became county surveyor of La Salle county. He served through the Black Hawk war and was Lieut. Col. of the 53d Illinois regiment of volunteers in the Civil war.

Col. T. Lyle Dicky came to Ottawa from Kentucky in 1831. He was a veteran of the Mexican war, a colonel of cavalry in the Civil war and was during one year on the staff of Gen. Grant. He was U. S. assistant adjutant general from 1868 to 1870. He then removed to Chicago, where he served as corporation counsel until elected to the supreme bench of Illinois in 1875.

Col. William H. W. Cushman came to Ottawa from Massachusetts in 1834. He was a banker and capitalist, was twice a member of the legislature and he raised the 53d regiment of volunteers in the Civil war and was commissioned its colonel.

William Hickling came from England to Ottawa in 1834. He was Ottawa's first mayor and was the first president of the First National bank of Ottawa.

Judge Edwin S. Leland came to Ottawa from Massachusetts in 1835. He became judge of the ninth judicial circuit from 1852 to 1866, and of the sixth judicial circuit in 1873.

Burton C. Cook came to Ottawa from New York in 1835. He was elected state's attorney for the ninth judicial circuit in 1846 and in 1848. In 1852 he was elected to the state senate and re-elected in 1856. He was elected to congress in 1864-66-68 and 1870.

MEMORIALS.

A boulder in Washington park erected by Illini chapter, D. A. R., bears a bronze tablet commemorating the fact that in that spot occurred the first Lincoln-Douglas debate August 21, 1858.

A bronze tablet erected by Illini chapter, D. A. R., at the north entrance of the La Salle county court house commemorates the fact that Abraham Lincoln practiced law during a period between 1852 and 1859 before the supreme court of Illinois at its sessions then held in the old court house on the site of the present county court house.

A sun dial erected by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Griggs on the bank of the Fox river at its junction with the Illinois bears an inscription commemorating the fact that at this point Abraham Lincoln was mustered out of service as a captain in the Black Hawk war on May 27, 1832, and that he enlisted on the following day as a private in Capt. Elijah Iles' company, Illinois mounted volunteers, serving until June 16, 1832.

At the entrance to Ottawa on the west end of Ottawa avenue parkway stands a white marble colonnade erected to the memory of the early settlers of the city and vicinity by their descendants.

Illini chapter, D. A. R., erected on the grounds of the state armory a caen stone fountain to the memory of Robert Cavalier de la Salle.

In Washington park stands a tall white marble shaft to the memory of those members of the Union army who died of wounds or were killed in battle in the Civil war.

John Stuart Ryburn Memorial hospital was erected by his widow in memory of Dr. Ryburn. The King and City annex to this hospital and King athletic field were both made possible by the bequests of the late Solomon E. King.

Allen park was given to the city by the late Edwin C. Allen.

The town clock was the gift of the late G. E. Penny.

The fountain in Washington park was given by the late F. A. Sherwood.

In Washington park stands a memorial to the "gold star" heroes of the World war, erected by the Ottawa War Mothers.

Erected in observance of the La Salle county centennial celebration is a typical pioneer log cabin in Allen park, dedicated to the youth of today in memory of the early settlers.

Another memorial erected as part of the Centennial observance is a bronze marker, placed by the D. A. R., which marks the site of old Fort Johnston, one of the earliest frontier forts in this vicinity. This fort was situated on the south bank of the Illinois river opposite the mouth of the Fox. On May 29, 1832, Gen. Atkinson crossed the river on Dixon's ferry, took up his headquarters here and established Fort Johnston, named for Lieut. A. S. Johnston, a member of Gen. Atkinson's staff. Those who escaped the Indian Creek massacre in the Black Hawk war made their way down the Fox river in canoes and took refuge in Fort Johnston.

Memorial Tablet Erected on Site of Fort Johnston.
